

Environmental and Social Sustainability Policy

Sysonby Knoll is a 30 bedroom hotel and restaurant on the outskirts of the market town of Melton Mowbray, Leicestershire. We have identified that the environment has a huge impact on the attraction of visitors to the area and in the sustainability of the community as a whole.

As such, we recognise that our business has an important role to play in protecting and enhancing the environment for guests, local residents and the future population of the area.

Therefore, we are committed to:

- Achieve sound environmental practices across our entire operation
- Comply fully with all relevant laws and regulations
- Minimise our use of energy, water and materials waste and adopt the principle of reduce, reuse and recycle
- Minimise the use of hazardous materials associated with our operations
- Promote environmentally acceptable practice to our guests and staff
- Work with others in the tourism industry and the community to achieve wider environmental goals
- Provide all employees with the training and resources required to meet our environmental objectives
- To annually review our policy and openly communicate it and other best practices to our employees, suppliers, guests and interested parties to encourage joint participation in our environmental efforts
- Continually monitor and review our performance relative to our policy, objectives and targets
- Maintain a continuous commitment to improved environmental practices
- Purchase local goods and services and provide employment opportunities to promote economic and social growth of the surrounding communities

Signed:

Gavin Howling (Proprietor)

